

Airport Advisory Board Membership

Forming an airport advisory board can encourage and increase community support for your airport. This board should consist of a diverse group of individuals that can advocate for the airport in the community. Airport employees, users, and individuals representing external groups all have a place on the advisory board. Use this worksheet to identify who will best represent the airport in the community.

Identify internal members, such as airport employees or airport users: Airport manager, FBO manager, pilots, and airport tenants.
