

Identify Potential Air Service Task Force Members

Remember the following when assembling your air service task force:

- ☐ Air service development task forces bring together key community stakeholders aligned with the interest of the airport in retaining and developing commercial air service.
- ☐ Task force members can come from a variety of local entities and should have the ability to meet as needed and provide relevant insights for air service development purposes.
- ☐ Members can include but are not limited to the following organizations: Top employers or industries; business council; convention and visitors bureau, chamber of commerce and economic development groups; City, County or State officials; travel agents and/or hotel associations.
- ☐ When reaching out to recruit members of a task force, all should have one common tie – interest in supporting the airport's ongoing air service development efforts and a contribution to make to the group's efforts.

Use the table on the next pages to track who might be suited best to serve on an air service task force.

Representatives from top employers or industries:
Name	Title	Company	Phone	Email	Comments

Business Council:
Name	Title	Company	Phone	Email	Comments

Representative from convention and visitors bureau, chamber of commerce and economic development groups:
Name	Title	Company	Phone	Email	Comments

Representatives from convention and visitors bureau, chamber of commerce and economic development groups:
Name	Title	Company	Phone	Email	Comments

City, County or State officials:
Name	Title	Company	Phone	Email	Comments

Representatives from travel agents and/or hotel associations:
Name	Title	Company	Phone	Email	Comments